

Mustafa Zahid EFE

Software Developer

I am a passionate software developer who especially works on web projects. In 2011, I started developing flash games, then I wanted to share my games through a website and started to learn web development.

Currently, I am running my own business. Consulting companies for their web projects and developing mobile applications as side projects.

Last Words

I believe knowing how things work is important. So, when I am learning anything, I rather learning how it works under the hood. That is what makes me different from any other software developer.

Thank you for your time.
